

Certificate Program in Implementation Practice

Supporting implementation can be challenging, whether the focus is a program, practice, or complex initiative. You may be trying to help colleagues or partners identify implementation priorities, co-create strategies with community members, develop and support teams, or use data to understand challenges from a range of perspectives—all while trying to build trusting relationships among a diverse group of stakeholders.

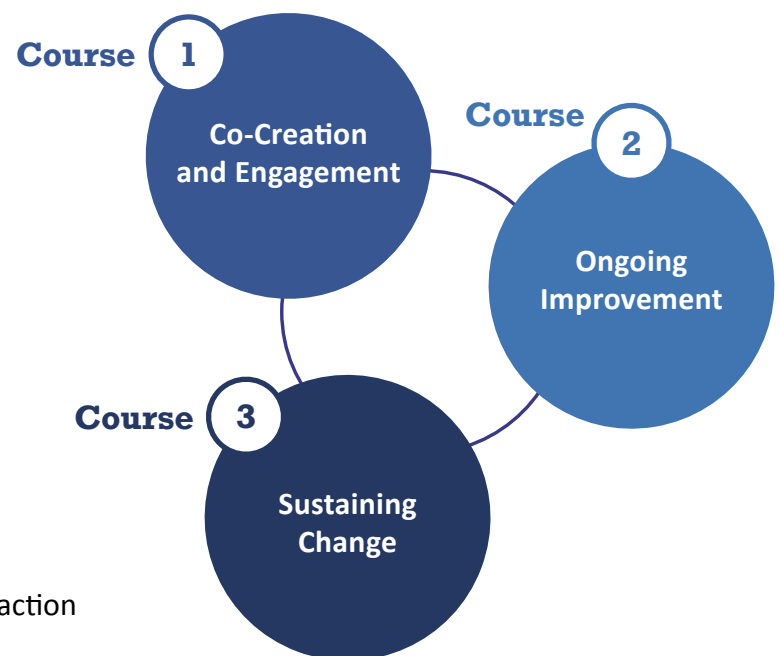

The Certificate Program in Implementation Practice will help you strengthen the competencies required to support and sustain implementation and change efforts over time. The program will provide hands-on opportunities to apply proven tools and strategies to your own implementation efforts, while connecting with and learning from peers experiencing similar implementation challenges.

Who should enroll?

The certificate program is designed for leaders, managers, and staff working in health and human services who support change efforts, including delivery and implementation of programs, practices, and policies to improve outcomes and advance equity.

Program Features

- Three live courses delivered via Zoom (two days each)
- Content grounded in core competencies for implementation support
- Limited enrollment to ensure personalized interaction
- Continuing education credits & digital badging from UNC-Chapel Hill
- Registration fee of $1,800; limited scholarships available
